

Share your Screen with Others Instantly

If you've ever wanted to show others what you are seeing on your computer screen, this is a fun, free software service. First, go to:

<http://www.screenleap.com/> and you'll see this:

Click on the green Share your screen now button and install the application on your computer.

Once you decide to share your screen, you'll get this temporary page, telling you how to share your screen. I got this:

I typed in the URL (under "Send viewers this link" on the address line of my iPhone's browser and was immediately able to see my home computer screen. As I moved around on my home computer screen, I saw the same movement on my iPhone. This brings new impact to your question, to a computer-knowledgeable friend, when you ask them "What's this on my screen?"